PORCELAIN ENAMELED CAST IRON KITCHEN SINKS

CATALOG

QUALITY & STYLE | SYNCHRONIZED

In 1928, CECO founder Michael Hurray offered a superior line of porcelain enameled cast-iron sinks for residential and commercial plumbing applications. These products of supreme workmanship, versatile design, and resilient materials would deliver lasting value and stand the test of time.

For over four generations, family-owned CECO (Commercial Enameling Company) has become a mainstay feature of homes and businesses across the country. From kitchen and bathroom sinks in homes, schools, and hospitals to lavatories and floor sinks in supermarkets, restaurants, and cafes, CECO products are trusted to function impeccably whenever needed.

The CECO foundry was originally established to manufacture cast iron porcelain enamel sinks and sell them to neighboring families and businesses. In the heat of World War II, CECO shifted factory output to cast metal bomb casings that would be used by U.S. troops fighting abroad.

The Hurray family expanded the CECO product line to include kitchen and bar sinks, lavatories, laundry trays, service sinks, floor sinks, and accessories. Matthew and Mark Hurray eventually took over the reigns of CECO, but only after working their way up from the warehouse floor, to the foundry and enameling room, onto customer service and finally into sales and manufacturing.

Today, co-owners Matthew and Mark continue to deliver the CECO promise of quality craftsmanship and genuine care for each product that leaves their warehouse doors. Every CECO sink is a tribute to the pursuit of the dream that began back in 1928; where every satisfied customer is testimony to a brighter future ahead.
